A Message from
NYC Department of Small Business Services Commissioner Gregg Bishop

Did you know that there are more than 230,000 small businesses in New York City*?

Small business owners often tell me that they rely on sales made during the holiday season to grow their businesses and create jobs.

Whether it's the unique products and services they offer or the friendly people who work there, these small businesses make our neighborhoods feel like communities.

Show that you Love Your Local independent businesses by shopping small on Small Business Saturday (November 30), throughout the holiday season, and all year long.

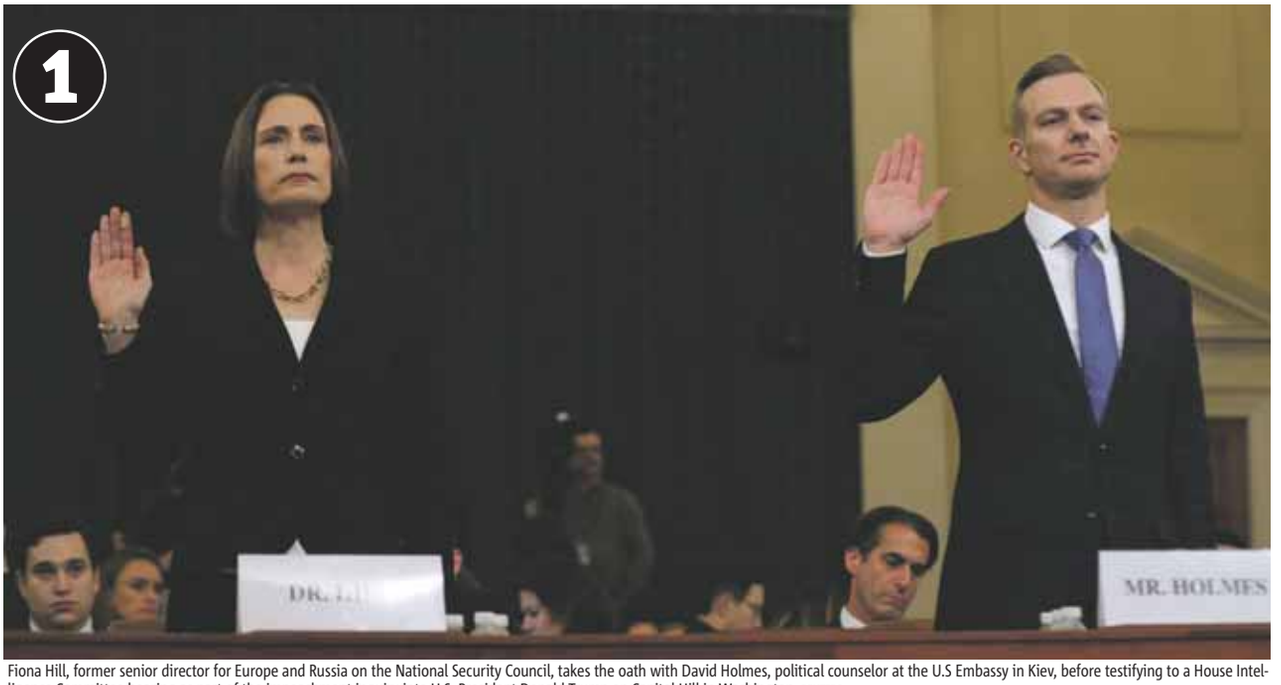
8 THINGS TO KNOW

Trump ex-adviser calls Ukraine election interference theory 'fictional narrative'

President Trump has embraced the discredited theory.



Fiona Hill, former senior director for Europe and Russia on the National Security Council, takes the oath with David Holmes, political counselor at the U.S Embassy in Kiev, before testifying to a House Intelligence Committee hearing as part of the impeachment inquiry into U.S. President Donald Trump on Capitol Hill in Washington. REUTERS

President Donald Trump's former Russia adviser Fiona Hill urged lawmakers in the House of Representatives impeachment inquiry on Thursday not to promote "politically driven falsehoods" that cast doubt on Russia's interference in the 2016 U.S. election.

In testimony to the House Intelligence Committee, Hill said based on their questions and statements some members of the panel appear to believe that Russia and its security services did not conduct a campaign against the United States during the 2016 presidential race, and that perhaps Ukraine did.

Some Republican members of the Democratic-led committee have advanced the discredited theory, which has been embraced by Trump and his political allies.

"This is a fictional narrative that has been perpetrated and propagated by the Russian security services themselves," said Hill, who until July served as the director for European and Russian affairs at the White House National Security Council.

"In the course of this investigation, I would ask that you please not promote politically driven falsehoods that so clearly advance Russian interests," she said in the last scheduled public hearing in the House inquiry.

The notion that Ukraine and not Russia interfered in 2016 was one of two issues that the U.S. president urged Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelensky to investigate in a July 25 phone call that is at the heart of the impeachment effort.

Trump also pressed Ukraine on the call to investigate Joe Biden, a leading contender for the Democratic nomination to face Trump in the 2020 presidential election, and his son Hunter, who had served on the board of Ukrainian gas company Burisma.

The inquiry is also examining whether Trump's withholding of $391 million in security aid to Ukraine, approved by Congress to fight Russia-backed separatists in the eastern part of the country, was meant to pressure Zelensky to conduct the probes.

Democrats say Trump's dealings with Ukraine amount to an abuse of power to pressure a vulnerable U.S. ally to dig up dirt on a domestic political rival.

> "This is a fictional narrative that has been perpetrated and propagated by the Russian security services themselves."
> Former Russia adviser Fiona Hill

Trump has denied wrongdoing, publicly criticized witnesses and described the impeachment proceedings as a "witch hunt." His fellow Republicans call the proceedings a "sham."

David Holmes, a staffer from the U.S. Embassy in Ukraine, testified on Thursday that his work started to become overshadowed in March by Trump's personal lawyer, Rudy Giuliani, who was pushing Ukraine to carry out the two probes.

In her testimony, Hill recalled a conversation she had with Trump's former National Security Adviser John Bolton about Giuliani's activities.

She said she had already expressed regrets to Bolton about Giuliani's "smear campaign" against Marie Yovanovitch, the former U.S. ambassador to Ukraine, who Trump withdrew prematurely from Kiev in May.

Bolton, she said, looked pained and "basically indicated with body language that there was nothing much that we could do about it." REUTERS

2 Michael Bloomberg to run for U.S. president

Billionaire Michael Bloomberg filed paperwork on Thursday with the Federal Election Commission to run for U.S. president as a Democrat, the latest sign that the former New York City Mayor is joining the crowded nominating contest.

The filing allows Bloomberg to raise money in a bid for the White House, but an aide said on Thursday that no final decision on whether he will run has been made.

Bloomberg, 77, has signaled that he plans a late-entry in the Democratic primary, suggesting he feels the field of nearly 20 candidates is vulnerable. If he enters, he will likely forgo the early states where potential rivals have been visiting for months.

Bloomberg had already registered to appear on the ballot in Alabama, Arkansas and Texas.

A separate advisor said on Thursday that Bloomberg also filed to be on the ballot in Georgia and Michigan. REUTERS

3 Teen in California high school shooting rampage used 'ghost gun' made from parts

A 16-year-old boy who opened fire at his Southern California high school, killing two classmates and wounding three others before shooting himself in the head, used a "ghost gun" built from parts, the local sheriff said on Thursday. Nathaniel Tennosuke Berhow pulled the .45-caliber semi-automatic pistol from his backpack on Nov. 14, his birthday, and shot students at Saugus High School in the Los Angeles suburb of Santa Clarita seemingly at random before turning the gun on himself. He died of his wounds the next day. "When we did a search of the house, we encountered what's called a kit gun. The weapon used in the homicide was also a kit gun," Los Angeles County Sheriff Alex Villanueva told local KABC-TV in an interview. "It was assembled from parts, had no serial number. So it becomes what's known as a 'ghost gun,'" Villanueva said. The sheriff told KABC it was not yet clear if the teenage gunman put the weapon together himself. The boy's father, who died in 2017, was an avid hunter who once owned six guns. But those weapons had been confiscated from him and destroyed, Villanueva said. Kit guns are sold legally at gun shows and online and are sometimes called "80% percent guns" because they are purchased roughly 80% assembled, he said

The sheriff told KABC that despite conducting 45 interviews and conducting an exhaustive search of Berhow's home, police had not yet determined a motive in the rampage, the latest mass shooting at a U.S. school during a national debate over gun rights. "All of those witnesses have been interviewed, we know the mechanism, the how, but the why still remains an elusive goal," he said. REUTERS

U.S. Senate passes funding bill to avert government shutdown this week

Legislation now passes to Trump for approval.

The U.S. Senate on Thursday passed legislation that would continue the funding for a wide range of federal agencies through Dec. 20 and avoid partial government shutdowns that otherwise would begin on Friday, when existing money expires.

The Senate approved the bill by a vote of 74-20. The legislation now goes to President Donald Trump for his expected approval, as the House of Representatives also passed this measure on Tuesday.

Between now and Dec. 20, House and Senate negotiators will seek agreement on how to divvy up money across all of the federal bureaucracy. They are hoping to come up with legislation to keep the government operating through Sept. 30, 2020, the end of this fiscal year.

But their work, already arduous, could be further complicated by the highly-charged impeachment investigation that Democrats are running in the House.

By December, the House could be in a full-blown debate over whether Trump should be removed from office for his actions related to Ukraine, in which he is suspected of withholding vital American aid as leverage in getting Kiev to launch investigations into one of the U.S. president's political rivals.

Trump denies doing anything improper.

It is possible that the impeachment debate could be reaching a crescendo in the House just as the Dec. 20 deadline is nearing and when federal funding would again expire unless Congress and Trump reach a deal.

Much of the hang-up over the spending bills for the current fiscal year, which began on Oct. 1, is over Trump's demand for billions of dollars to build a wall along the U.S.-Mexico border.

Trump made his pledge to build such a wall a centerpiece of his 2016 campaign for president, although at the time he assured voters that Mexico would pay for the construction - an idea Mexico has roundly rejected.

Having failed to convince Congress to grant him the money for his border wall, Trump has used "emergency" authority to shift funding from various projects to the wall, raising the ire of Democrats. REUTERS

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

"Don't Get ANY Surgery Until You SeeThis…"

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It's Best "Treatment Formula" For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going is be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it's complex. In other words, it's not a simple, easy fix.

But I'm sure you already know that. Or you wouldn't be reading this.

That's the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It's amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

While I can't give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD "Treatment Formula" A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW....

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these "gel injections" without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patent. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here's What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our "Treatment Formula."

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what's going on and what is your best course of action… step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what's going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I'm out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

New York Transit Museum's Grand Central Gallery & store welcomes back Holiday Train Show at Grand Central. ARGENIS APOLINARIO FOR THE NEW YORK TRANSIT MUSEUM

Celebrating its 18th year, the New York Transit Museum's Grand Central Gallery & Store will be hosting its annual free holiday-themed miniature eclectic railroad that shows off the city's wonderful landmarks, open now.

The train showcases Lionel model trains traveling across a 34' long, two-level, "O" gauge mode. The Transit Museum's collection of model trains includes miniatures of the Metro-North, Polar Express and vintage subway sets. The track starts in Grand Central and brings viewers along a journey to the North Pole.

The Holiday Train Show will feature artwork from Julia Wertz, who is well-known for her black-and-white streetscapes.

New York Transit Museum Director Concetta Bencivenga said in a press release, "This show is a family tradition, providing a sparkling and joyful place for our customers and visitors to be delighted by the magic of miniature trains and Julia Wertz's impressive artwork."

Bencivenga added, "We've added some new tiny surprises to the layout this year – including Pearl Paint, the Lennox Lounge, and the Carnegie Deli – and we encourage everyone to look closely to find them!"

The Holiday Train Show is sponsored by Con Edison and the additional support is provided by Interactive Elements Inc. and other donors. The exhibitions at the New York Transit Museum are supported by funds provided by the New York City Department of Cultural Affairs in partnership with the City Council. They are also funded by the New York State Council on the Arts, New York State Legislature and Governor Cuomo. The Hugoton Foundation also supports the Grand Central Gallery.

The show is on view until Feb. 23, 2020. You can visit the New York Transit Museum Gallery & Store at Grand Central, located in the shuttle passage on 42nd St. and Park Ave. It is adjacent to the Station Master's Office. It is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sat and Sun from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

If you go:

It is free to the public, year-round. For more information, go to nytransitmuseum.org/visit.

Raccoon spotted in Brooklyn MTA station

Subway riders in Brooklyn spotted a raccoon in the subway on Wednesday night.

The curious critter was caught on camera at the Nevins St. station in Fort Greene. Commuters shared images of the raccoon on social media, with one observer sharing a photo of the raccoon's backside and a tweet that said, "@NYCTSubway yo there's a whole a– raccoon at the platform Brooklyn bound at Nevins St. can you help him?"

Twitter user @Oswaldthehedgie added another image of the animal, saying,"@NYCTSubway this is a better picture of the lil guy. I don't wanna do him dirty with that last pic."

MTA officials said they were aware of the raccoon's presence.

At this time, no one is sure where the raccoon came from or where it was going. Perhaps it was meeting up with pizza rat? Or maybe it was meeting up with its buddy in the West Village, where another raccoon was seen on Nov. 13.

TWITTER/ @OSWALDTHEHEDGIE

Raccoon sightings have been a little more common than usual. On Nov. 16, the MTA tweeted, "Brooklyn-bound L train service is resuming after a train's brakes were activated at Broadway Junction. The culprit was determined to be a raccoon underneath the train."

It was reported by thecity.nyc that the furry bandits have caused issues in the subways at least 11 times this year. They also reported that in 2018, they only had five raccoon-related subway issues. BECCA GLASSER-BAKER

U.S. judge rebukes Epstein estate for keeping accusers in the dark about settlement

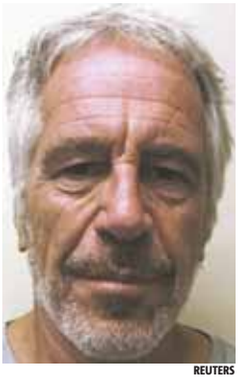
A U.S. judge on Thursday rebuked Jeffrey Epstein's estate for keeping the late financier's alleged victims in the dark about a fund that would compensate them for claims of sexual abuse.

The estate, facing at least 14 lawsuits from women, has proposed creating a fund to resolve the allegations out of court.

Epstein, 66, hanged himself in a Manhattan jail in August while awaiting trial on federal sex trafficking charges.

Bennet Moskowitz, a lawyer for the estate, told Magistrate Judge Debra Freeman on Thursday that the fund was an "extraordinary opportunity" for the alleged victims, though he could not say how much money would be available.

Roberta Kaplan, one of the attorneys for the women, said she was met with "radio silence" when she had tried to discuss a settlement with the estate. She said it was "incredibly disrespectful" to propose the fund without hearing from the alleged victims.



REUTERS

Judge Freeman agreed the women must have more to say about any settlement process, adding it could not be "unilateral."

"For cases to settle, there has to be not just interest on both sides, there have to be seats at the table on both sides," the judge said. Freeman ordered both sides to confer and report on their progress by Jan. 10.

One of the women's lawyers, Brad Edwards, said he may file "dozens" more lawsuits against the estate.

Epstein had pleaded not guilty to sex trafficking charges involving dozens of underage girls at his mansions on Manhattan's Upper East Side and in Palm Beach, Florida, over several years.

He previously escaped federal prosecution by pleading guilty in 2008 to Florida state prostitution charges, an agreement now widely considered too lenient.

Epstein's friends once included Donald Trump, Bill Clinton and Britain's Prince Andrew. REUTERS

U.S. judge stalls Trump administration bid to resume federal executions

President Donald Trump disembarks from Air Force One at Joint Base Andrews in Maryland, U.S., on November 20, 2019. REUTERS

Legal challenges to lethal injection revived.

A U.S. judge has halted the scheduled executions of four inmates on federal death row, temporarily stalling an effort by President Donald Trump's administration to resume federal executions next month after a 16-year hiatus.

Judge Tanya Chutkan, who is presiding over long-running legal challenges by condemned prisoners to the Department of Justice's lethal injection protocol, issued the temporary order late on Wednesday in the U.S. District Court in Washington.

She said the condemned inmates suing the government were likely to succeed on at least one of their arguments, namely that the Federal Death Penalty Act requires the Bureau of Prisons (BOP) to follow the execution procedures of the state in which an inmate was convicted.

"There is no statute that gives the BOP or DOJ the authority to establish a single implementation procedure for all federal executions," Chutkan wrote in her 15-page opinion, referring to the agencies by their initials.

She said it was likely that Attorney General William Barr had overreached his authority in July, when he announced that the Justice Department planned to resume federalexecutions using a new one-drug protocol.

Barr said the department would execute condemned inmates with pentobarbital, a powerful barbiturate, replacing the three-drug protocol the department used in carrying out its last execution in 2003.

Barr also announced execution dates in December and January for five men on federal death row in Terre Haute, Indiana, all of them convicted murderers.

The announcement revived legal challenges to the lethal injection protocol dating back to 2005 that had lain dormant in federal court. Some 60 inmates are on federal death row, including Boston Marathon bomber Dzhokhar Tsarnaev, who killed three people and injured more than 260 in the 2013 attack.

One of the five men with execution dates, Lezmond Mitchell, won a stay in the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last month. The other four men are now protected by Chutkan's order.

"This decision prevents the government from evading accountability and making an end run around the courts by attempting to execute prisoners under a protocol that has never been authorized by Congress," Shawn Nolan, one of the attorneys for the men facing federal execution, said in a statement.

On Thursday, the Justice Department said it would ask the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit to overturn Chutkan's order.

The department had opposed any delay in the executions, saying the new protocol was lawful and the condemned inmates' victims have a "compelling interest in the timely enforcement of a lawful death sentence."

Marielle Heller and Tom Hanks. ALL PHOTOS LACEY TERRELL

The beautiful impact of Fred Rogers

Director Marielle Heller and journalist Tom Junod talk new film "A Beautiful Day in the Neighborhood."

MOLLY GIVEN

The number one question I've been asked when I mention to people that I've seen the new film, "A Beautiful Day in the Neighborhood," is "What is it about?" People want to know is the movie about Mister Rogers' life? His show? A dark secret perhaps? Most are surprised when I shake my head — it does showcase all of that (minus the dark secret of course), but it's about so much more than one man; it's about the impact he made on those around him.

So no, "A Beautiful Day in the Neighborhood" is not all about Fred Rogers' life, but there is truly no better way to tell a story about such an incredibly astonishing person than by showing what he did to get that reputation.

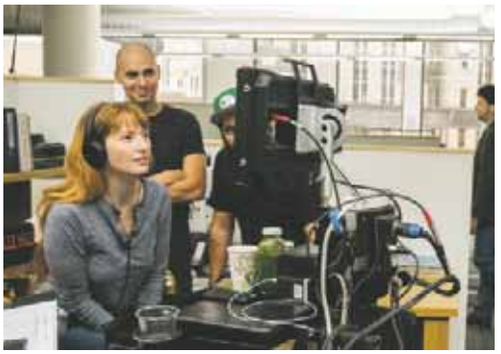
The new film directed by Marielle Heller starring Tom Hanks was inspired by the 1998 Esquire article by Tom Junod, "Can You Say...Hero?," and the real-life friendship between the two men. At the time, Junod was working as a hard-hitting journalist hunting down a bit more, let's say, dark sorts of characters and was ultimately surprised when his editors assigned him to the soft-spoken man on TV who played with puppets and taught children about kindness.

"I didn't know what to think. In my mind, he was someone like Captain Kangaroo or even this character that was parodied in skits on 'Saturday Night Live.' Later on, he became someone people loved, a hero. I didn't know at first what I was going to be writing, to me, a hero wore a cape or was a war veteran from Vietnam. So when I was going to meet this person who was so admired I didn't know what I was going to get," says Junod.

The story follows a character similar to Junod, Lloyd Vogel, a journalist sent by his editors at Esquire to profile Mister Rogers for their 'Hero Issue.' Lloyd, dealing with his own set of problems stemming from a troublesome childhood, is openly reluctant about the whole ordeal.

When the script was first floating around Tinsel Town, producers wanted no one else to play Fred Rogers than Tom Hanks — but the Oscar-winning actor was not as keen on the project. Then Marielle Heller signed on and everything changed.

"He and I had been looking for a project to do together for a long time," says Heller. "He's been a fan of mine since 'The Diary of a Teenage Girl' and we had wanted to work together. I think he knew if I was doing this project it wasn't going to be a simple biopic, it had to have something more going on. I explained to him that I wasn't interested in an imitation and I felt like we could really do something very special with this movie that had the potential to really touch people's hearts in a deep way. I also explained to him I didn't want a sketch version of Mister Rogers, I wanted him to just get the essence right. So he read the script with that in mind and he signed on right away."



Getting the essence right is exactly what Hanks does, you don't need any CGI or crazy make-up to help get the appearance of Fred Rogers. That came from many discussions with Heller and hours upon hours worth of watching footage of Fred Rogers — it's truly all in his behaviors and ability to connect with people. As we see in the movie, Lloyd as a journalist is about as cynical as you can get. Even in his first few meetings with Mister Rogers on the set of his show, and later on in even more personal settings, the reporter does not seem to have the patience for the kind nature and almost therapeutic answers Rogers gives when Lloyd grills him about his life. In fact, it's almost as if the interview on screen is in reverse.

"Fred did have superpowers," says Junod. "He worked really hard at living a life where he could guide others. One of Fred's skills was to be able to see inside people, find out what they needed and give it to them. He did that with me. For multiple reasons at that time, I had lost trust in myself — Fred trusted me. I think he saw something in me, and that process hasn't ended. I've spent the past few months dedicating myself to talking about this movie because I think in some ways, Fred is still asking something from me."

The film does take Mister Rogers fans down memory lane. The scenes that show the inside of his studio is almost exactly the way it looked when the show was on air decades ago. That was an important aspect to Marielle Heller.

"We hired these incredible puppet makers from 'Sesame Street' to recreate the puppets perfectly. The same with the set, we got the original blueprints and were able to recreate the set perfectly from the fabrics of the curtains to the couch — it just had to feel right, and when you saw it, you had to step back in time," says Heller. "Every little detail we looked at. It wasn't just about faking it, it was about getting it right so that anyone who had been a fan of the neighborhood would feel that. That also meant studying how they filmed it — how did their camera work? How did they edit? Any whiff of it feeling fake and you would have felt it."

Both Heller and Junod have personal connections to the film, Junod with his friendship with Fred Rogers and Heller with growing up watching the show. Both feel as though this film is something special, and it is. It's one of those films that you feel the whole audience is involved in — which is what Mister Rogers would have wanted.

"I cried reading the script. There are people who are saying 'Wow, this is the movie I need right now' and that was how I felt. I felt like it was the movie I needed to make," says Heller. "I hope that it gives the audience a chance to re-examine themselves a bit. We were all children and we all have things that we are still healing from that we're walking around with everyday and I think part of what Fred was helping us do was to reconnect to our childhoods."

"This movie gives you the experience of Mister Rogers from the experience of people who he directly helped," says Junod. "The kindness that Fred had, required practice. I think he was always asking the question: what do I need to do to achieve that kindness? I think he will ask the audience that as well."

"A Beautiful Day in the Neighborhood" hits theaters Nov. 22.

Lele Pons debuts a Tarte Cosmetics collaboration

The new collection has three items, perfect for the everyday makeup lover. BECCA GLASSER-BAKER

Lele Pons has conquered the world of Vine, YouTube, Instagram, music and now, the beauty industry. Is there anything she can't do? Lele Pons just launched a beauty collaboration with Tarte Cosmetics.

The collection is full of items perfect for beauty lovers. The collection includes: Lele Pons x Tarte eye & cheek palette ($35), a Lele Pons x Tarte lip gloss ($20) and Lele Pons x Tarte tarteist PRO cruelty-free lashes ($12). Metro spoke with Lele Pons all about what inspired this fabulous collection, and she said, "I really wanted to capture my go-to look. I don't want to say that I'm picky, but I definitely have a look that makes me feel like me. You know when you're getting your makeup done & you're trying to tell them what you want? I want to look like me, but I also want to look like I had my makeup done! Everything here creates a look that I'm comfortable with – it feels natural, it's not too much but not too little. Like a happy medium."

This collection is perfect for those who prefer a natural look with a little bit of flair.

The Lele Pons x Tarte eye & cheek palette is Tarte's well-loved formula that is infused with Amazonian clay. The palette is a combination of nine metallic and matte neutral bronze shades, perfect for an everyday look. The palette also has a matte warm pink blush and rose gold highlighter. If you haven't tried the Tarte blush or highlighter formula, you're in for a treat. These products apply beautifully. Pons told Metro that if you are only able to pick up one thing from the collection, she said this was the item.

Although it was hard for her to choose, she told Metro, "Eyes are most important to me because they express who you are – if I'm going to focus on one thing in a look it's going to be the eyes, so I'd have the say the eye & cheek palette. Plus you can use it for daytime or a full glam night out look, so you'll get the most out of it!"

The lip gloss is a shade that Pons has deemed an essential, so much so that Pons said, "I can't leave my house without lip gloss – I always have this one on me. It's the perfect shade; I really wanted one that would look good on everyone by itself." This lip gloss formula is a rosy nude shade that nourishes and conditions the lips. The gloss is non-sticky and vegan. The formula also helps smooth the appearance of fine lines.

The final item in the collection is some full and fluttery false lashes. Metro asked Pons for her best piece of advice when it comes to applying false lashes, and she said, "I'm definitely not a makeup artist, but my beauty guru, Jose Figueroa, gave me a few great tips for how to apply them! He told me to place the lashes right above your lash line on the outer corners & then brush them through with a clean mascara wand, so they blend into my actual lashes and make my eyes look bigger."

GETTY IMAGES

Pons also added, "Big eyes & long lashes are probably what I'd say is my 'signature look,' so I'm really excited about the lashes too. They're cruelty-free & vegan, but what's really cool is that they get more dramatic in the center so they open up your eyes instead of closing them off like others that get dramatic in the corners."

You can check out and order from Lele Pons' collection online now at Tarte.com. If you're a huge Lele Pons fan, Tarte will be hosting a meet and greet with Pons at Macy's Herald Square on Saturday, Nov. 23, from 2 p.m.-4 p.m. If you're out of NYC, don't worry, you can still order the collection online now at Tarte.com.

Giants vs. Bears: What to watch as Big Blue visits Soldier Field

The Giants are coming off a bye week with plenty to prove.

JOE PANTORNO

The New York Giants have had two weeks to stew over an embarrassing loss to their in-stadium rivals, the Jets, during Week 10.

In the battle of incompetent MetLife Stadium-based teams, the hapless Jets' sputtering offense found their footing against the Giants' miserable defense — which has shown zero improvements under coordinator James Bettcher this season.

The secondary is in shambles and the pass rush is non-existent as evident in their inability to get through the Jets' sieve-like offensive line.

Their next test this Sunday comes in the form of the Chicago Bears, who have a struggling offense of their own behind misfiring quarterback Mitch Trubisky.

The third-year passer was initially deemed questionable for Week 12 due to a hip pointer injury, but he was a full go at practice on Wednesday and is expected to be a go against the Giants.

Now, something has to give.

Either the Giants defense finds the right stuff or Trubisky looks like the talent the Bears expected to get when they drafted him second overall in 2017.

In nine games this season, Trubisky is completing just 62.4-percent of his passes — including a miserable 10-for-21 outing two weeks ago against the Philadelphia Eagles for 44-percent — with nine touchdowns and four interceptions.

While the numbers aren't egregiously bad, the Bears' offense just isn't putting up points. They've scored 20 points or fewer in seven of nine games this season.

Only the Washington Redskins have scored fewer points than the Bears in the NFC this season.

But the Giants haven't shown an ability to stop most of their opponents regardless of their offensive standing. They let the Jets' offense score 27 of their season-high 34 points after averaging just 12 points per game entering Week 10.

Bettcher's unit ranks 29th in the NFL in scoring defense, 26th in total yards allowed and 23rd in sacks.

Meanwhile, the Giants' offense continues to struggle to find its footing under head coach Pat Shurmur — who seems to be handcuffing the promising core of Daniel Jones and Saquon Barkley.

While Shurmur's utilization of Barkley was an issue during the early portions of the season, now there is a concern if there is something physically wrong with the star running back.

He's been a non-factor since returning from a high ankle sprain earlier than expected. Barkley had just 28 yards on 14 carries against the Dallas Cowboys in Week 9 before the Jets completely shut him down for just a single yard on 13 carries before picking up a shoulder injury.

Barkley was not on the team's injury report this week, but his every move will be under the microscope for the rest of the season.

Should he continue to struggle, the Giants will turn to Jones more and more.

The rookie quarterback has looked the part of franchise quarterback throughout his first handful of games in the NFL minus an inability to hold onto the football when hit.

Jones put up his second 300-plus-yard and four-touchdown passing performance in three games in Week 10. A fellow rookie, wide receiver Darius Slayton, is emerging as his favorite target in the process as the two hooked up for 10 receptions, 102 yards, and two touchdowns against the Jets.

Raiders to provide Jets with first real test in weeks on Sunday

Crossing sporting cultures, a line from fictional baseball manager Lou Brown in "Major League II" comes to mind when examining the New York Jets.

"We won a game yesterday. If we win one today, that's two in a row. If we win one tomorrow, that's called a winning streak."

If three wins in a row constitute a winning streak, the Jets are within touching distance of their first winning streak in quite some time.

After a miserable start to the season, the Jets have reeled off two-straight wins against the two worst teams in the NFC East — the Giants and Redskins.

It's the first time that the Jets offense looked like a legitimately imposing unit — fueling the team to two-straight season-high outputs of 34 points.

Sam Darnold — who was given proper time to throw — is playing some of his best football yet. Against the Giants and Redskins, he combined to complete 63.33-percent of his passes for 523 yards, five touchdowns, and just two interceptions.

The turnover number is especially promising after a four-game stretch that saw him picked off nine times.

Now, the Jets schedule will pick back up as they host a surprising Oakland Raiders team that is exceeding all expectations.

This was a team that was left for dead after the departures of Khalil Mack and Amari Cooper while the capabilities of QB Derek Carr fell under fire.

Yet, Oakland is 6-4 through 10 games and holding onto the second spot in a challenging AFC West division that also includes the Kansas City Chiefs and Los Angeles Chargers.

Their defense, however, can be susceptible to some big outings.

The Raiders rank 20th in points allowed and 19th in yards yielded.

Darnold could have another solid day in the cards, too, as Oakland's passing defense has allowed the seventh-most yards through the air and the third-most passing touchdowns this season.

Le'Veon Bell (left) and Sam Darnold (right) will look to make it three straight for the Jets on Sunday. GETTY IMAGES

Look for the Jets to try and get Le'Veon Bell the ball more, as well. The All-Pro running back has struggled to compile the yards he used to put up in Pittsburgh since signing with Gang Green.

Bell has yet to hit the 100-yard rushing mark as a Jet and has hit the century mark in all-purpose yards just twice.

If the Jets do pull out a win in Week 12, it will be the first time they've won three-straight games since Weeks 3-5 in 2017. JOE PANTORNO

Arm for Mets to consider: MadBum

The Mets could be in the market for a fifth starter. Could Madison Bumgarner be a fit?

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

New York Mets general manager Brodie Van Wagenen's plans regarding a fifth starter are currently unclear as we descend into the heart of Major League Baseball's offseason.

The Mets are currently expected to lose Zack Wheeler, who turned down the team's $17.8 million qualifying offer to test the waters of free agency.

Wheeler is poised to become a rich man as one of the best arms available on the market this winter despite a 2019 season in which he posted a 3.96 ERA.

Per MLB.com's Jon Paul Morosi, the Los Angeles Angels, San Diego Padres, Minnesota Twins and Chicago White Sox are considered the leaders to land Wheeler in a contract that should eclipse the $100 million mark. His departure will leave the Mets with a singular, noticeable void in an otherwise solid-looking starting rotation that will feature Jacob deGrom, Marcus Stroman, Steven Matz and Noah Syndergaard. The latter — who has been the subject of trade rumors dating back to 2018 — is officially not for sale, according to Van Wagenen earlier this week.

Pipe dreamers around the Mets fan base will fantasize about Van Wagenen getting the green light from the Wilpons to go after Gerrit Cole or Stephen Strasburg — the top two arms of the free agent market this offseason.

Their price tags, however, will likely be far too rich for the Wilpon family's liking as both right-handers could receive over $200 million. Cole could be even higher at $250 million after the dominant, Cy Young-caliber season he put together for the Houston Astros.

Given ownership's history, the perceived course of action is that the Mets will turn to an existing option in their ranks — whether that is Seth Lugo or Robert Gsellman — or they'll find a journeyman arm on the cheap.

But there is a top-tier name out there that can be cheaper than Strasburg or Cole and could give the Mets one of the most imposing starting rotations in the game: Madison Bumgarner.

The 30-year-old southpaw had one of his poorest seasons as a pro in 2019 on a bad Giants team. His 3.90 ERA and 30 home runs allowed both were career worsts.

Yet he led the majors with 34 starts, eclipsed the 200-inning mark for the seventh time in his career and walked just 43 batters compared to 203 strikeouts for an impressive 4.72 SO/W ratio.

There was even a 13-start stretch from Jun. 25 to Aug. 30 in which Bumgarner went 6-1 with a 2.81 ERA with 84 strikeouts in 84 innings.

After two injury-riddled seasons, his stuff is still there.

In New York, he wouldn't have to shoulder nearly as much within a deep starting rotation where he could be the No. 3 man behind deGrom and Syndergaard.

He would also be moving to another pitcher-friendly park in Citi Field where he'll have a better opportunity to get back to his old ways.

After all, entering the 2019 season, Bumgarner had a career ERA of 3.03.

When the lights are brightest, the southpaw is at his best, which will fare well on the big stage of New York.

For a Mets team on the cusp of contention, acquiring one of the best postseason pitchers of this generation would be an enormous acquisition.

In 16 playoff appearances, Bumgarner is 8-3 with a 2.11 ERA. He's even better in the World Series, possessing a 4-0 record in four starts while allowing just a single run in 36 innings of work.

That past resume will play a large part as to why his next contract will be as much as it is. But Bumgarner could be had for a price between $155 million and $175 million.

It's certainly a pretty penny, but it's considerably less than what they'd have to dish out for Cole or Strasburg while creating a rotation that would go as follows:

Jacob deGrom
Noah Syndergaard
Madison Bumgarner
Marcus Stroman
Steven Matz

If Brodie Van Wagenen could then shore up his bullpen, the Mets will be in serious business for 2020.

horoscopes

Aries Size up what needs to be done and do your best. Don't let someone's criticism bring you down. Reward yourself when the job's complete.

Taurus You've got what it takes to reach your goal. Set your sights high and adapt to any unforeseeable change that you encounter. Gather the facts and act accordingly.

Gemini You'll have plenty of opportunities come your way. Refuse to let anyone stifle your plans, lead you astray or come between you and your dreams.

Cancer Imagine new ways to use your skills, talents and knowledge to get ahead. A new outlet will breathe life into the way you do things. Trust your judgment.

Leo Having fun with friends is favored, but don't feel that you must pay for others. Generosity is nice, but only when kept in perspective. Don't add to your stress or debt.

Virgo Getting out and experiencing new people, places and pastimes will spark enthusiasm and prompt you to look for adventure and excitement.

Libra Don't let anyone limit what you can do. Personal gain is within reach if you are willing to take physical action to improve your life. Romance is in the stars.

Scorpio Now is not the time to procrastinate. If something needs to be adjusted, take the initiative before someone else steps in and takes the reins.

Sagittarius Consider where you stand and how you want others to respond to you. Use your connections to help spread your intentions and to get the guidance and support you need to be successful.

Capricorn Get the most out of life. Shrink your lifestyle and ease your stress. Don't make situations more complicated, when a little ingenuity, control and self-discipline are all that's required.

Aquarius Look at a challenge as a nudge to make a positive change in your life. If you start with physical adjustments, it will eventually lead to mental and emotional improvements.

Pisces Size up what needs to be done and do your best. Don't let someone's criticism bring you down. Reward yourself when the job's complete. Romance is on the rise. EUGENIA LAST
